

New iPhones are here: the 5C and the 5S

[caption id="attachment_286" align="alignleft" width="150"]

iPhone 5C.[/caption]

[caption id="attachment_289" align="alignleft" width="150"]

iPhone 5S[/caption]

[print-me] Apple announced two new iPhones: the 5C and 5S. Clients have already started to ask us our thoughts and whether they should rush out and upgrade. Both telephones have some great advantages like improved battery life, better cameras, and a faster processor, but we're suggesting that our customer hold off for a while. Apple currently has a big push to give away the 4S line of phones, and based on our experience, it's a very reliable device, so a free 4S is not a bad idea right now. We think that Apple is prompting users to move towards these new phones in order to get better results with the new iOS 7 operating system that is due out soon. Hold on tight, the next few months are going to be very interesting for Apple